Federico Proverbio

Munich, Germany +49 176 62598267 federico.proverbio@econ.lmu.de LinkedIn GitHub

Research Interest

Macroeconomics, Monetary Economics, Housing, Heterogeneous Agents, Structural Modeling

Current Positions

PhD Candidate in Economics Since Oct 2026
Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München (LMU Munich) — Munich, Germany
Doctoral researcher under the supervision of Prof. Dr. Wiederholt and Prof. Dr. Busch.

Education

M.Sc. in Economics Oct 2024 – May 2026
University of Bonn — Bonn, Germany
Grade: 1.0 (highest distinction)

B.Sc. in Business Administration and Economics Sep 2021 – Jul 2024
Tor Vergata University of Rome — Rome, Italy
Grade: 110/110 cum laude

Research Projects

"Comparing Homeownership in Germany and Italy: Analyzing the Role of Relevant Policies through the Lens of a Quantitative Model (Master Thesis)" 2026
I built on the overlapping generations model of Kaas (2021) to study whether differences in housing policies can explain differences in homeownership between Germany and Italy along the income distribution and the life cycle. Circa 40% of the homeownership gap can be explained by a reduction in real estate transfer taxes and differences in the structure of the social housing program of the two countries. More specifically, while there are almost no differences among middle aged workers, gaps still persist among young middle wealth workers and retirees.

"The Long Shadow of Servitude: The Causal Effect of 19th-Century Slavery on the Contemporary Labor Market Inequalities in Brazil" 2026
with Federico Eolo Otto Stoppa, Eirini Liontou and Nishant Jha
We adopt an IV design to test whether historical differences in slavery presence in Brazil shapes the modern quality and stability of insertion into the labor market of different ethnicities. We rely on micro-data at the municipal data, both historical and modern, and make use of the AMC harmonization technique to ensure spatially consistent comparisons. Significant effects are found on the wage and unemployment gap between white and black ethnicity, while no seizable differences are found in the labor force participation or in the informality rate.

Teaching Experience

Teaching Assistant, Business Cycles and Monetary Policy (BSc) Oct 2026 – Feb 2027
Prof. Dr. Wiederholt, LMU Munich — Munich, Germany

Teaching Assistant, Macroeconomics I (BSc) Apr – Jul 2025; Apr – Sep 2026
Prof. Dr. Hintermaier, University of Bonn — Bonn, Germany

Teaching Assistant, Mathematics for Economists (MSc) Oct 2025 – Jan 2026
Prof. Dr. Dilmé, University of Bonn — Bonn, Germany

Professional Experience

Intern at MEF Apr – Jul 2024
Italian Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF — I.GE.P.A. Division) — Rome, Italy
Followed the work of the Commission for Standard Requirements to achieve essential levels of social services across political entities (LEP), helped draft reports and analyzed technical auditions.

Collaborator, International Office Sep 2023 – Mar 2024
Tor Vergata University of Rome — Rome, Italy

Managed mobility processes for hundreds of incoming and outgoing ERASMUS+ and international students, coordinating across university databases and European exchange platforms.

International Relations and Management Intern Jan – Feb 2022
TraineeLand — Berlin, Germany

Scholarships & Awards

Certificate of Excellence Jun 2025
Tor Vergata University of Rome — Rome, Italy

Awarded on the basis of academic merit.

Scholarship Holder (Stipendiat) Apr 2025 - May 2026
Heinrich Böll Stiftung — Germany

Awarded on the basis of academic merit and social engagement.

Skills

Programming: STATA, MATLAB, R, EViews, Python (learning)
Tools: LaTeX, Microsoft Office, Google Drive, GitHub, Sciebo
Languages: Italian (native), English (C1), French (C1), German (B2.2), Portuguese (B2)

Volunteering

Volunteer language mediator Apr 2023 - July 2026
Studio Legale Avvocati Parini 9 — Rome, Italy (Remote)

Member Feb – Jul 2022
AIESEC Italy — Rome, Italy